

Alba Museum Network

The Alba Museum Network unites museums and cultural sites that represent Alba's historic, artistic, archaeological and literary heritage.

The Roman and Medieval history of the town can be explored in the Cathedral of San Lorenzo and the Diocesan Museum, in the town hall's archaeological sites (the Invisible City), the Vida school (the complex of ancient walls) and the church of San Giuseppe (the Roman theatre). Artefacts from prehistoric times to the medieval era are on display at the Eusebio Civic Museum, while the church of San Domenico and its frescoes offer a taste of the Gothic period.

More recent history can be found reflected in the literary works of Beppe Fenoglio and the art of Pinot Gallizio, whose legacies are preserved and promoted by the Beppe Fenoglio Study Centre.

Archaeological itinerary exploring the origins of the city and the cathedral of San Lorenzo.

MUDI Diocesan Museum

Visiting the cathedral and exploring the subterranean rooms of the museum is the best way to discover the thousands of years of history of this important sacred building and the city of Alba itself, from the Roman and early Christian ruins in the foundations, the early-14th-century rebuilding and the baroque renovations, up to the panoramic views out of the double-lancet windows of the medieval bell tower, which hides an even more ancient belfry inside.

The Diocesan Museum also manages other local sites of particular historical and artistic relevance, which can be visited thanks to the support of volunteers.
